A bindi is an auspicious mark worn by young girls and women in India. The name is derived from "Bindu", a Sanskrit word for "point" or "dot" and is usually red in color made with vermilion powder which is worn by women between their eyebrows on the forehead. The origin of the bindi can be found in ancient times but has lost this significance in modern life and is mostly worn all over the world as an accessory.

The Traditional Bindi. Traditionally, it is a bright red dot applied to the center of the forehead close to the eyebrows. But bindis can also be other colors with a sign or piece of jewelry worn upon them. Many people associate the red bindi with the ancient practice of offering blood sacrifices to appease the Gods .

Bindi: Investigating the True Meaning Behind the Hindu ...

A bindi is a coloured dot worn on the center of the forehead, originally by Hindus and Jains from the Indian subcontinent. The word bindu dates back to the hymn of creation known as Nasadiya Sukta in the Rigveda. Bindu is considered the point at which creation begins and may become unity. It is also described as "the sacred symbol of the cosmos in its unmanifested state". Bindis are considered an immense part of Bangladeshi culture and women in Bangladesh irrespective of their religion, adorn th
