Robert Frank: Storylines. 28 October 2004 - 23 January 2005. Sorry, no image available. Robert Frank is one of the world's most influential photographers. For more than fifty years, he has broken the rules of photography and film making, challenging the boundaries between the still and the moving image. In 1996, he was presented with the Hasselblad Award, for his contribution to the development of post war-photography.

Robert Frank: Storylines - Exhibition at Tate Modern | Tate

Robert Frank was a Swiss photographer and documentary filmmaker, who became an American binational. His most notable work, the 1958 book titled The Americans, earned Frank comparisons to a modern-day de Tocqueville for his fresh and nuanced outsider's view of American society. Critic Sean O'Hagan, writing in The Guardian in 2014, said The Americans "changed the nature of photography, what it could say and how it could say it. it remains perhaps the most influential photography book of the 20th c

Robert Frank: Storylines will include images from Peru 1949, London 1951-52, Wales 1953 and Black White and Things 1952, the four groundbreaking series of photographs of everyday life which were to change the language of post-war photography.

Robert Frank: Storylines | Press Release | Tate

First published in France in 1958, then in the United States in 1959, Robert Frank's The Americans changed the course of twentieth-century photography. In eighty-three photographs, Frank looked beneath the surface of American life to reveal a people plagued by racism, ill-served by their politicians, and rendered numb by a rapidly expanding culture of consumption.
